LOUISE SHEPARD, WIFE OF LATE ASTRONAUT, DIES DURING FLIGHT

Louise Shepard

By TAMARA GRIPPI

LOUISE SHEPARD spent the past month answering sympathy cards and letters she received after her husband's recent death. And then she was stricken by a fatal heart attack during an airline flight to Monterey August 25. She was 74.

Mrs. Shepard was returning from a visit with her daughter, traveling from San Francisco to her Pebble Beach home at 2:26 p.m. when she suffered the heart attack. Members of the flight crew tried in vain to revive her with CPR.

Hacienda Carmel ordered to fix alarms

By TAMARA GRIPPI

'My 91-year-old mother would not stand a chance escaping a fire in her unit because of this irresponsible policy.'

ACTING ON a resident's complaint, the Cypress Fire Protection district inspected Hacienda Carmel's alarm system and reported "grave concerns about the life-safety of the residents."

"The fire alarm system for the facility you manage was found to be in a significant state of disrepair," wrote fire marshal Greg Furey in an August 25 letter to the management of Hacienda — the Carmel Valley retirement community.

Furey told the managers that they must immediately test all smoke detectors and revise their emergency procedures.

The fire inspection was sparked by a complaint from the daughter of a 91-year-old resident who said the smoke detector in her mother's apartment wasn't working.

The woman — who did not wish to be identified — said she was disturbed when smoke from burning food in her mother's kitchen failed to set off the alarm.

So she decided to "create my own 'fire drill' by lighting paper (for smoke) and matches (for heat) with absolutely no response from sensors or alarm," she wrote.

The resident complained that the alarm system had been malfunctioning since 1995. She wrote, "My 91-year-old mother would not stand a chance escaping a fire in her unit because of this irresponsible policy! Multiply this by the other 300 residents."

Furey issued an order to Hacienda general manager George Piercy to comply with several fire safety regulations including:

- Proof of a 24-hour fire watch throughout the facility.
- Mandatory testing of all smoke detectors by a licensed professional.
- Notification to all residents that the alarm system "does not fully perform as designed and originally installed."
- One week notice to revise the emergency reporting procedures.

According to Furey, three Hacienda employees told him that when an emergency is reported to the front desk, the fire department "might" be notified based on the report of an on-site security guard.

- A 30-day warning to fully restore the existing alarm system or provide another system.

Early morning wake-up calls

Cypress Fire Asst. Chief George Haines said he hadn't received more than the one complaint against Hacienda.

Some Hacienda residents who spoke with the Pine Cone said they didn't know of any problems with the alarm system and as far as they knew the smoke detectors were working perfectly.

"They work," said Doris Plubell. "I've heard them go off early in the morning."

Some residents said they weren't sure how the alarms would be tested. "I've lived here six and a half years and I don't even know how they test it," said Alice Campbell. Campbell said she wasn't worried, however, about the alarm systems.

Since Hacienda is basically a collection of single family homes, the management is not responsible for providing fire drills, according to Haines.

Phone calls and written messages for Piercy and Hacienda maintenance manager Dean Maxinoski were not returned.

FBI snares Carmel woman on 42-count fraud indictment

By TAMARA GRIPPI

CARMEL RESIDENT Rhonda Farrah was indicted August 13 by a federal grand jury on 42 counts of wire fraud, money laundering and income tax evasion.

Farrah surrendered last week at the U.S. Marshal's office in San Jose. She was then placed under house arrest and electronically monitored at her Carmel home until she was able to post the $100,000 bond August 24, according to U.S. Attorney Gary Fry.

Farrah is pleading not guilty to all the charges, according to her lawyer, James McManis. "This is a complaint," McManis said. "There is no proof of anything. The grand jury gets to hear one side of the story only. They have not yet heard form my client."

Farrah, who moved to the Carmel area in late 1994, was charged with pocketing money that she had promised to invest for clients. According to the complaint, she hid the money by transferring it to various accounts — including several at a Carmel bank.

The grand jury charged her with four counts of wire fraud, two counts of federal income tax evasion and 36 counts of money laundering.

Farrah falsely represented herself as a "program manager" to investors in Connecticut, according to the grand jury report completed August 13 in Hartford, Connecticut.

She allegedly promised investors a return of ten times their money in one year or less. After several clients transferred their money by wire to Farrah, she converted it to her own use, according to the indictment.

The grand jury indicted her on four counts of wire fraud for money she took from investors totaling $436,000.

McManis said that Farrah did nothing wrong. "It's my understanding that the money was invested with their consent and that the investment did poorly. They were unhappy and they're blaming Rhonda."

Don and Marilyn Poling, a couple from Bethesda, Maryland, said they were recommended to Farrah by a broker. Although they never met Farrah in person, they decided to wire her $100,000 to invest in October, 1994, shortly before Farrah left Connecticut and came to Carmel.

Assault of the Beaniacs

By PAUL MILLER

THE NATIONAL obsession with plastic-filled plush toys called Beanie Babies has brought fraud, assault and abusive behavior to some of Carmel's toy stores in the last several weeks.

Thursday, police announced that a 25-year-old Marina woman was being investigated for buying more than $6,000 worth of Beanies using stolen credit and debit card numbers. She phoned toy stores in Carmel, Monterey and Salinas, ordered large numbers of Beanie Babies, and paid for them with charge card numbers her ex-husband obtained from discarded receipts he pulled out of the trash at a Carmel inn where he works, police said.

When asked about the incident, Heidi Toy, a supervisor at the Game Gallery in Carmel Plaza, said that many of her customers seem to become irrational in their quest for the Beanies and that she is "verbally abused" every day by someone upset when they're not available at the store.

Delana Pierce, owner of Sand Castles-by-the-Sea at The Barnyard, said she has had to call the sheriff twice to control aggressive customers. According to Pierce, one customer, a grandmother, refused to leave Sand-Castles and grabbed another shopper in a dispute over who could buy a small group of Beanie Babies.

"This isn't about children, it's about greed," Pierce said. "People have the idea that they'll get rich by collecting these toys, and they lose control," she said.

The first report of fraudulent use of a debit card came August 18 when a

Carmel teenager gets $250 fine for near-fatal accident

By KIRSTIE WILDE

"IT'S FRUSTRATING, but that's the way the system works," Carmel Realtor Deen Rowe said last week after a Carmel High School student was fined $250 for making an "unsafe turning maneuver" that nearly killed Rowe, 56, and his passenger, John Tudor, in a head-on collision on Carmel Valley Road on Dec. 6.

Brigham Bergstrom, 16, pleaded no contest to the reduced "unsafe turn" charge before traffic court commissioner Richard Rutledge at Monterey County Municipal Court in Marina. He also pleaded no contest to a charge of driving without a valid driver's license.

Bergstrom, accompanied by several friends, appeared relaxed as his attorney asked the commissioner for the $250 fine.

"This was a mistake made by a 16-year-old," Joseph Panetta said. "The kind of mistake plenty of 16-year-olds make."

But District Attorney Tim Roberts asked for a much bigger fine because, he said, the accident was an "aggravated case" of reckless driving. Witnesses said Bergstrom and his friends were "playing tag" — passing cars at high speed — when he smashed into Rowe's car and sent it rolling into a ditch. (See photo next page.)

"I thought, 'Oh my God, I'm going to burn to death,'" Rowe recalled. "I tore my sweater off because it was pinned, and frantically tried to crawl out the window. All this with broken ribs, collarbone dislocated, kneecap bashed, toes broken, punctured lung. That's how scared I was."

"Brigham had a cut lip from his braces."

Formerly an avid golfer, jogger and tennis player, Rowe has had to give up sports. "I'll have trouble with my leg forever," he said. Tudor is "bad off," according to Rowe, still suffering from his injuries.

Police & Sheriff's Log

Man used pepper spray on 'aggressive' yellow Labrador

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Department last week.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 16

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Elderly male on Torres fell down in his bathroom. Carmel fire and ambulance responded and assisted.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: On Santa Fe, woman reported the house next door may have some unknown house guests. Area check was made both inside and outside. (North side door found unlocked.) Note left for owner to call police.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Assistance given to foreign visitors who lost their car key on the beach. They were taken to a hotel. The key was never located.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Man on Lobos near 2nd reported that another man had pepper sprayed first man's yellow Labrador. Second man said the Lab had escaped from its enclosed yard and exited toward street where second man was walking his dog. He became fearful that the Lab was being physically aggressive and, fearing that his dog would be hurt, sprayed pepper spray on the Lab. Both parties counseled.

Mayor: missing art 'a matter of opinion'

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

"As THE picture gets clearer about the inventory, we may have some art missing, but to say it now, before it's finished, is more of an opinion," Mayor Ken White told The Pine Cone, referring to a disclosure last week by the Committee for Art in Public Places that an estimated $250,000 worth of city-owned art cannot be accounted for.

CAPP's on-going inventory of the city's art revealed missing works by Rembrandt, William Keith, Albrecht Dürer and others. If not displayed in city buildings, the art is supposed to be stored at Sunset Center or in the Local History Room vault at the library's Park Branch.

CAPP, assigned to complete the inventory by the city's Cultural Commission, also found that some of the art is improperly stored and at least one Whistler etching is damaged.

Miriam Rosenstein, interim chair of CAPP following Robert Fisher's resignation this month, told The Pine Cone that the inventory of artwork stored in the Park Branch library vault is more than 50 percent completed. She and fellow CAPP member Lacy Buck have been surveying the art, most of which comprises unframed works on paper. "We still don't know what may turn up," she said.

Rosenstein said that a lot of the art work is fragile and has to be handled very carefully — literally with gloves. She and Buck are measuring and inventorying each work. "It is a slow, careful process — very accurate and time-consuming" she said.

No blame placed

Concerning the missing art, Rosenstein said, "We are not saying that anyone currently in office or on staff was negligent." In talks this week with friends at various museums, she learned it is not uncommon for a benefactor to make a gift to a collection but later ask to borrow it for a weekend and then forget to return it. "This doesn't mean anything was stolen or lost — simply that the follow-up [of the art's return] never happened," she said.

Betty Hoag McGlynn, a former CAPP member, concurred with Rosenstein that neglect, poor storage or possible missing city art is not thought to be the fault of current administrators.

City purchases MOM

Greg D'Ambrosio, assistant city administrator, told The Pine Cone that the city has purchased a computer program called MOM — Municipal Operations Management — that can catalogue the art collection. Within the next two weeks, computer professionals will instruct the administrative staff on how to use the software for various city operations, he said.

"We've known for years that records of the city's artwork haven't been detailed enough. What we have now is only an informal record of art transfers," he acknowledged. The new system will allow immediate information, a description and whereabouts of all city art once it is inventoried and examined by CAPP. "The new inventory will not be a duplicative one," D"Ambrosio said. "One number will be assigned to an identified object, with an all-inclusive description, as well as its physical condition, value and insurance data. We can make it as in-depth as we want to."

Monterey man reported a phony $1,800 deduction from his bank account.

The charge was for a large purchase of Beanie Babies from a Carmel store, a police spokesman said.

Carmel police officer Dirk Stoddard investigated the incident along with others that were reported that week.

He quickly realized that all the fake charges were for the same, cuddly toys.

Stoddard learned that a Salinas store had received a large Beanie Baby order by phone, and was waiting for the "customer" to come to the store to pick up the toys.

Carmel Detective Pete Poitras and a Salinas police officer waited at the store for the woman to appear. While they were there, she phoned to have the toys delivered to an address in Marina.

When a Salinas police officer, posed as a delivery man, arrived at the address, the suspect flagged him down and asked for her Beanies.

When confronted by officers, the suspect (whose identity is being withheld by police until she is formally charged) admitted what she had done.

More than 100 Beanie Babies were seized from her home.

Crowds of fanatics

The Beanie Baby craze started in the mid-1990s when children across the country discovered the inexpensive, cute creatures and began buying them in droves. Collecting the toys, which began innocently on the shelves of 6-year-olds, soon become a craze when the manufacturer, Ty Warner, "retired" the first nine models. Prices for those original Beanies rose to as high as $5,000 apiece.

Subsequent toys have also been periodically retired, but they were produced in such large numbers that experts doubt their value as collectibles.

"Ty made more than 3 million of the Glory Bear," Heidi Toy said. "And there were more than 100 people lined up outside Carmel Plaza last Saturday at 7 a.m. hoping to buy one when we opened."

According to police records, the crowd of hopefuls was already large at 5 a.m., and some of the shoppers had been waiting all night.

According to the Game Gallery, a similar crowd gathers almost every Friday night, waiting for new styles of Beanie Babies to go on sale Saturday morning.

"It's the grownups who are causing all this difficulty," Pierce said, "and somebody needs to tell them to get a life."

Both Carmel stores have policies limiting the number of Beanies Babies each customer can buy. But desperate shoppers tell tall tales to get around the limits.

"We only sell two of each style per family," Pierce said. "One elderly woman asked her grandchildren to say they weren't her relatives to get around the limit, even though the kids kept calling her 'Grandma,'" Pierce recalled ruefully. "Another young woman threatened one of my employees," she said.

Both stores say they get dozens of calls a day about Beanie Babies.

"I just finished telling a lady never to call here again because she keeps swearing at me," Heidi Toy said. "They accuse us of lying about which toys we have, because they only want the new ones."

SandCastles tries to deflect some of the calls by answering its phone with a recorded message: "Thank you for calling SandCastles. We do not have any Beanie Babies just now. If you'd like to speak to us about another matter please stay on the line. . . ."

FRAUD

Farrah promised the couple that their money would always be safe in their trading account, Don Poling said. However, after listening to months of "humongous stories" about why their investments had been held up, the couple asked for their money back, Poling said.

When Farrah wouldn't return the $100,000, they called the FBI.

While living in Carmel, she has allegedly transferred money from a trust fund at a law firm in Hartford, Connecticut, into the bank account of "Benjamin Enterprises."

McManis said that the "so called money laundering" was simply "routine business activity. The money was transferred from this account to that account for very good reasons," he said.

The grand jury report also charges Farrah with attempting to dodge taxes by claiming she owed the federal government nothing in 1993 and 1994.

"We're going to find out what happened there," McManis said. "She and I have to go back four to five years and look at literally boxes and boxes of documents and try to reconstruct these transactions."

The Polings said they were relieved that Farrah had been caught and hoped that no one else would "do business with her."

"She has gotten away with this a lot," Marilyn Poling said.

If convicted, Farrah faces up to 20 years imprisonment and a $500,000 fine on each of the money laundering counts, as well as five years imprisonment and a $250,000 fine on each of the wire fraud and tax evasion counts.

Farrah is scheduled to appear in federal court in San Jose on Sept. 17, according to U.S. Attorney Gary Fry. At that time, a date will be set for Farrah to appear in Connecticut.

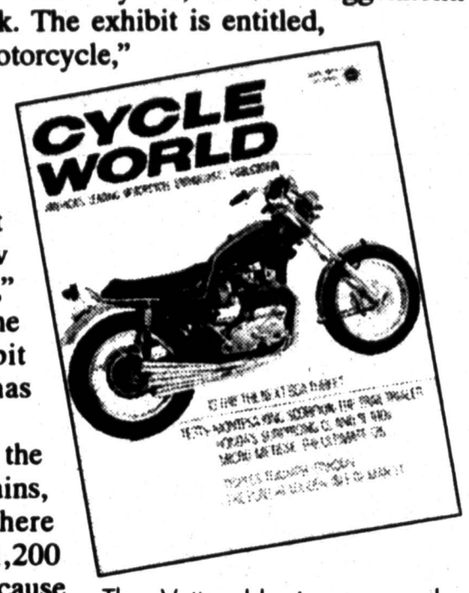
Driving

From rags to the Guggenheim, Valley motorcycle

By KIERSTEN McCUTCHAN

"IT'S A real Horatio Alger story," said Carol Vetter. She ought to know; she's the wife and long-time riding companion of Craig Vetter, a motorcycle man from Illinois — now living with his family in Carmel Valley — who had humble beginnings, but big, honest American dreams that really came true.

Vetter's achievements as a motorcycle enthusiast have, in fact, exceeded anything he could have dreamed of. One of his designs, the Triumph X-75, is currently on display, along with 99 others motorcycles, at the Guggenheim Museum in New York. The exhibit is entitled, "The Art of the Motorcycle," and features "the top 100 motorcycle designs of the century."



The Vetter Hurricane on the cover of September 1970's "Cycle World." This actual bike is now retired in Craig Vetter's own personal motorcycle museum.

The Vetters just returned from New York. "It was packed," Craig said. "It is the most popular exhibit the Guggenheim has seen," he said.

His bike is part of the exhibit, Craig explains, not only because there were fewer than 1,200 produced, but also because this Triumph was the last production by BSA (Birmingham Small Arms) with a BSA engine and frame.

"I'm an inventor and an industrial designer," Craig said. In 1969 BSA came out with the Rocket Three. "It was weird looking — and not appreciated in the U.S.," Craig said. "The bike wasn't selling well and I called BSA and said 'I can fix this.'"

Craig said he spent the summer of 1969 in Illinois "turning this ugly English motorcycle into a bike Americans would love."

BSA looked at his design and loved it. Production began June 2, 1972, at the BSA/Triumph factory in England. The last bike was produced in 1973.

Craig said he never sees the bikes on the road because "most of them are in museums."

He has long known that his bike was considered important. It marked the end of 50 years of British motorcycle design, and launched the collaboration of American and British motorcycle design artists.

Still, he admits, it was strange to see his bike in a museum.

"We went around and looked at these 100 motorcycles," he said. "It was a real treat to look across the room and see Peter Fonda's 'Easy Rider' chopper and then see my bike straight ahead."

Another treat, Craig reports, is picking up "The Art of the Motorcycle" anthology produced by the exhibit and finding a close-up of his bike taking up the entire back cover.

The Hurricane is not Vetter's only claim to motorcycle fame. After graduating from the University of Illinois in 1965, he began designing motorcycle fairings — the protective clear shield that wraps not only the front of the motorcycle, but sometimes the entire bike.

His innovative design led to what Craig described as a "substantial little business" and in 1966 he named his new venture the Vetter Fairing Company.

By the late '70s, Craig had more than 500 employees and his "substantial little business" was making hundreds of thousands of fairings, eventually turning out the most well-known fairing design ever: the Windjammer III. It can now be found on most motorcycles.

"At that point," Craig said, "my business was second to Harley Davidson in motorcycle sales." Carol had gone to work for Craig

EVERYONE KNOWS

The Liberty Bell cracked when it was rung on July 4, 1776.

EVERYONE IS WRONG

The Liberty Bell cracked in 1835, 59 years after Independence Day. Most people who don't write for TV sitcoms use their entire brain every day. And contrary to what you might have heard, there are five nicely equipped Mercedes vehicles under $40,000: the C 230 Sedan at $30,450; the C 280 Sedan at $35,400; the ML 320 SUV at $33,950; the SLK Roadster at $39,700; and the CLK Coupe at $39,850. Call 1-800-FOR-MERCEDES to hear more. Because hearing is believing.

Craig Vetter at a BSA dealers' conference in 1972 in Houston, Texas astride the first pre-production Hurricane just like the one in New York City's Guggenheim.

in the early '70s. She describes the early Vetter Company as more like a family than a business.

The office was an old barn, she said, in the middle of the fields of Illinois. Everyone worked hard and sometimes they wouldn't have enough money for paychecks.

But, she said, everyone believed in what Craig was doing and not only was he a success, everyone was a success, she said.

In the mid-1980s, Craig sold the business, married Carol, and moved to Carmel Valley to begin raising a family.

Their two sons, Zak, 16, and Morgan, 14, are avid motorcycle fans — and Carol still rides, too. The family recently gave her a perfectly restored Honda like the very first bike she ever had.

Craig jokes that his boys just think he's a great dad, with no idea about the importance of his work in the motorcycle world. "They think everyone's dad has something in the Guggenheim," he laughs.

New rescue truck debuts in daring save at Rocky Creek

By KIERSTEN McCUTCHAN

THE CARMEL FIRE Department and its new rescue vehicle are getting big kudos for the Aug. 17 rescue of construction worker Ronald Pinkston whose crane toppled over a guard rail on Rocky Creek Bridge and dangled precariously 150 feet in the air.

Carmel's recently purchased light duty GMC/Isuzu rescue vehicle played a very important role in the daring operation that rescued Pinkston.

Dave Jedinak, who drove the truck with partner Ian Watts (both Carmel Fire Department engineers) said the new equipment was critical to getting Pinkston back on solid ground, alive.

The rescue call didn't produce more than the average adrenaline rush — until they actually got to the bridge.

"We thought it was a crane that had maybe fallen towards the hillside. We didn't realize it was leaning over the edge!" Watts said.

By the time he and Jedinak were on the scene, the sheriff's rescue unit had already devised a plan to rescue the badly injured crane operator, whose legs were crushed in the accident. But, according to the Carmel firefighters, all of the plans and all of the safety ideas were in jeopardy because of the scary fact that it was very windy and the crane could have toppled at any second.

Their new rescue truck is small enough to maneuver easily — executing a quick u-turn at the bridge — but large enough to carry special equipment like a "mini jaws of life."

Dave Jedinak assisted in the rescue that made use of this new equipment.

The firefighters credited Jess Mason of the sheriff's rescue team with risking his life to save Pinkston. He climbed out to the suspended crane, using safety ropes from the Carmel rescue truck

Watts said, "Pinkston's feet were pinched and Mason used that mini tool to extricate his feet."

The beauty of the new truck is that it is loaded with just about every conceivable type of rescue equipment, already loaded and at their fingertips.

"Kind of like 'Q' in 'Get Smart,'" Watts joked.

Prep leagues realigned —

Carmel, Stevenson lose archrival Palma

By JERRY STEWART

WHEN THE 1998-1999 Mission Trail Athletic League prep schedule kicks into gear next week the high school teams, including Carmel High and Robert Louis Stevenson, will find themselves squaring off against some unfamiliar faces.

No longer in the MTAL are perennial juggernauts Palma High, Alvarez, Alisal and Notre Dame, all of whom will now be competing in the larger-school Monterey Bay League.

Jumping to the MTAL will be MBL defector Seaside, Anzar High (which participated in some sports last year) and Soledad and Greenfield, both of which will begin action in 1999-2000.

"Every two years we look to see if the leagues need restructuring, and since we were in a realignment cycle it became obvious that with the addition of Soledad and Greenfield, there would have been 13 teams in the MTAL," said Elgie Bellizio, commissioner of both leagues. "That's a problem because if the league is too big scheduling becomes a real headache."

When the move is complete there will be nine teams in the MTAL and 11 in the MBL.

According to Bellizio, the rapid growth of Salinas-based Alisal and Alvarez played a major role in the decision making process, while Palma and Seaside both volunteered to make the change.

Hans Schmidt, Carmel High's athletic director, said the move definitely will make the league more balanced.

"Losing Palma is a big effect, because they're a class group and the game against Palma was always the pinnacle of the season," Schmidt said. "If you beat Palma it really meant something, but Seaside will definitely make an impact in the MTAL in some sports because of their athleticism."

The majority of coaches feel the moves were necessary and will benefit each league's teams.

However, one CHS coach who wished to remain anonymous said the move may actually hamper his team's postseason chances.

"The bad effect of the league shift is that during the regular season we'll be playing games against weaker opponents, so when we get to the playoffs and CCS we won't be prepared for the stiffer competition," said the coach.

Stevenson athletic director Jeff Young stated that the change is good, but said that he'll also miss the friendly rivalries which had developed between Stevenson and its former foes.

"Enrollment is the fairest way to match up schools," said Young. "But I'll miss our association with the schools that have left. I hope we'll be able to continue that rapport with the new schools."

Friends and family were shocked to lose Mrs. Shepard so soon after her husband, moon-walking astronaut Alan Shepard, died July 22.

Mrs. Shepard had been working with officials at the Naval Postgraduate School to organize a Labor Day concert tribute to her husband.

"She stood beside her husband through every challenge that he faced," said Commander Bob Anderson. "She was also a hero."

Mrs. Shepard wanted to personally thank everyone who wrote to her, said friend Sue Ann Sutton. "She said, 'people have told me such beautiful things, such heartfelt stories of how Alan touched their lives,'" Sutton remembered.

Sutton — who worked as a flight attendant with the Shepards' daughter, Julie — first met Mr. and Mrs. Shepard in the hospital after the two young women survived a plane crash in Denver 1975.

"Whatever they brought Julie, they brought me," Sutton remembered. "I had no family members there. But the Shepards took very good care of me."

Friends remembered Mrs. Shepard as a "regal woman with a twinkle in her eye." She responded to all the attention in a classy, reserved way, Sutton said.

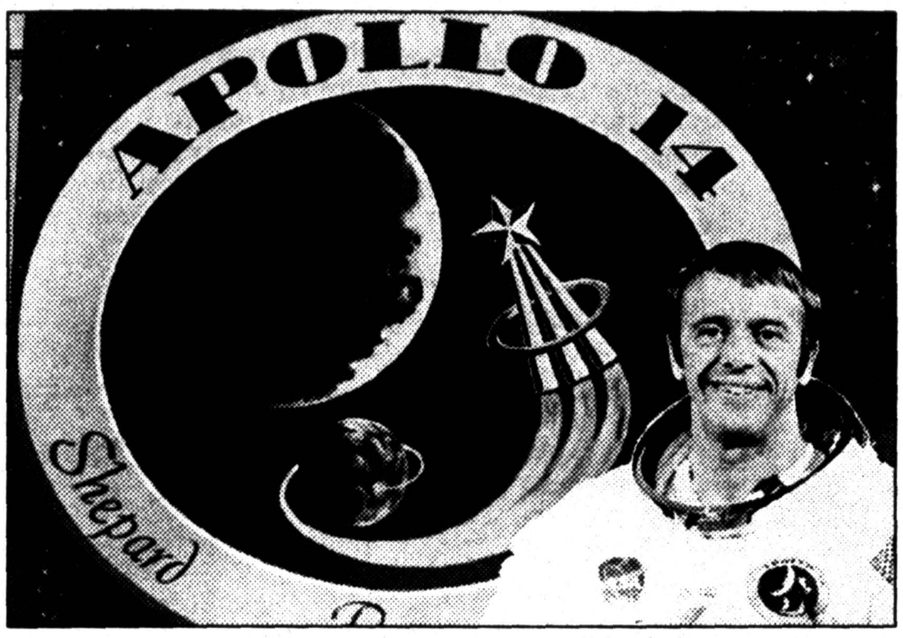
"The Shepards certainly didn't think of themselves as celebrities," Sutton said. "You could just sit down and talk with her. She was a great listener."

As the wife of an astronaut, Mrs. Shepard had her own way of supporting her husband on his famous space missions — including his 1971 trip to the moon.

"She told me that if 'you haven't experienced it (space exploration), no matter how much you would like to think you understand it, there's no way you can,"" Sutton said.

The Shepards met while Alan was a student at Annapolis Naval Academy and Louise was attending a nearby boarding school.

Mrs. Shepard is survived by her daughters, Julie Jenkins of Wimberly Texas, Laura Churchley of Evergreen, Colo. and Alice Wackermann of Plano, Texas; and six grandchildren.



Louise Shepard participated in the NASA tribute to her late husband, Alan, in Houston just three weeks before her death August 25.

Thunderbird Bookshop joins national suit against chains

By PAUL MILLER

THE OWNER of a landmark Carmel book store is upset about the increasing dominance of "supermarket" bookstore chains and has joined in a lawsuit alleging that Borders and Barnes & Noble have unfair business advantages over their smaller, independent competitors.

A attorney for Borders denied that the company has done anything wrong.

"Thunderbird Books has been here since 1961 and we're part of the community," says May Waldroup, owner of the bookstore in The Barnyard. "But the big chains have advantages that aren't available to us, and I'm very concerned about the future."

Thunderbird Bookshop is a member of the nation-wide American Booksellers Association (ABA), which filed the suit in the U.S. District Court for Northern California.

The suit alleges that the nation's two largest book-selling chains have engaged in a widespread pattern of "illegal business actions" and argues that both chains have "engaged in a pattern and practice of soliciting, inducing and receiving secret, discriminatory and illegal terms from publishers and distributors."

According to the ABA, Barnes & Noble and Borders (Borders also owns B. Dalton and Walden Books) have a combined total of more than 2,000 stores and together represent approximately $5 billion in sales.

The suit contends that the chains' "market saturation strategies are being fueled in significant part by secret and illegal terms" from book publishers, and that much of this expansion "can only be profitable if the chains receive illegal deals and existing independent booksellers are driven out of the marketplace."

The ABA says that California law makes it illegal for a publisher to secretly allow a bookstore special "unearned discounts" that injure and eventually destroy competitors.

"We're a tourist town and we get people from all over. They used to come to shop here at the Thunderbird and it was an event — a unique bookstore with an inventory that was hand-chosen," Waldroup says. "But the discounts that the chains can offer and which are unavailable to us are really hurting our store," she says.

For example, special allowances go to the big stores for displaying books prominently, she said. They also receive allowances for advertising and special terms for returns which are not available to independent book stores.

According to ABA research, the independent booksellers' market share of adult titles fell from 32 percent in 1991 to 18.6 percent in 1996.

Reginald Steer, a San Francisco attorney who is defending Borders in the suit, told The Pine Cone that Borders had answered the suit by denying that there's been any wrongdoing at all.

He also said "discovery" — when each side looks at the other's documents and records — will last until late 1999.

August setback for September Ranch

By KIRSTIE WILDE

AFTER $400,000 in hydrological studies, a full-blown environmental impact report and hours of public hearings, members of the Monterey County Planning Commission say they still have no idea if September Ranch has enough water for its 117-home subdivision.

"I admit I don't know everything there is to know about water," said commissioner Carol Lacy, "And I don't want to know."

At the end of their three-hour August 26 deliberations, Lacy and the majority of the planning commissioners threw up their collective hands and gave up, voting to recommend that the Board of Supervisors cut the project by almost 60 percent and eliminate half the affordable housing planned for September Ranch. They said that the amount of water on the ranch seems to be adequate for at least that many homes.

The project is expected to come before the board in late October or November, by which time the Morgens family, owners of the 900-acre ranch, hope to "clarify a very confusing" water scenario.

"I think that the issue of the water, and the mitigation site, got so confused that the final decision [by the planning commission] was made on an unclear, incomplete understanding," Jim Morgens said after the meeting.

Growing houses instead of crops

The water dispute centered on a "mitigation measure" suggested in the Environmental Impact Report which would require September Ranch to search for another site in Carmel Valley with water rights and eliminate pumping on that property in exchange for extra pumping on the ranch.

Morgens bought a 12-acre lot at Schulte Road — zoned for a single-family house and currently used to grow vegetables — which he says has a right to 32 acre-feet of Carmel River water.

The Monterey County Water Resources Agency agreed that the plan would give September Ranch enough water for its 117-home subdivision.

But the planning commissioners were far from convinced.

"What scares me is that some day down the pike, we can take water out of agricultural use," said Lou Calcagno. "We're going to create a desert on the farm ground, and the only thing it will be good for is houses, because they use less water."

Commissioner Maryn Derdivanis said she was "scared to death" by the idea, which has already gotten around. "Somebody called me to ask if they could buy a small property with riparian water rights in Carmel Valley and trade it for a hookup for their estate lot in Pebble Beach."

Monterey County Counsel Mary Grace Perry said the idea of using off-site water as a mitigation for development was previously approved at the Moro Cojo affordable housing project in north county, and her office defends the concept.

Hatton Canyon hike Saturday

AN informational nature hike through Hatton Canyon, sponsored by the Monterey Peninsula Regional Park District and the Hatton Canyon Coalition, will take place Saturday, August 29.

According to the sponsors, the 2-hour hike will "include a discussion of the alternative uses of the Hatton Canyon — construction of an urban freeway or preserved as a public watershed park."

Hikers should meet in the Albertson's parking lot on Carmel Rancho at 9 a.m.

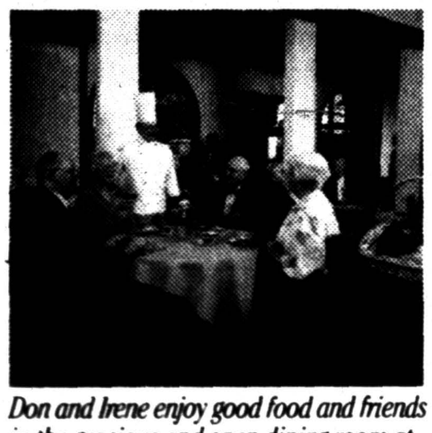
Giving back to their community keeps the Slaiters busy and fulfilled.

Enjoy full Life Care retirement living in Pacific Grove.

Retirement living hasn't slowed down Don and Irene Slaiter. Both say they're as active today as they were during their careers. As volunteer docents for Bay Net, they support their love of marine life on the Monterey Peninsula and share their knowledge with others at Coast Guard Pier and Lover's Point near their home at Canterbury Woods.



Don and Irene enjoy good food and friends in the gracious and open dining room at Canterbury Woods.

Don and Irene also find the time and energy to be certified American Red Cross volunteers, ready to accept a call for help anytime they're needed.

When not volunteering, Don takes golf lessons and enjoys line dancing with Irene and other Canterbury Woods residents.

"We're so lucky," says Irene, "and so happy to be living here in comfort with so many other active and interesting people. We feel secure in knowing that at our home at Canterbury Woods we're guaranteed comprehensive lifetime medical care."

OPINION

Editorial

The police log's fame spreads

A CHORAL RENDITION of our Police Log brought down the house at the final concert of this year's Bach Festival two weeks ago.

Done in the style of an Anglican chant, the piece consisted of items lifted nearly verbatim from the Aug. 7 edition of this newspaper.

Choral director Bruce Lamott came up with the idea after he and fellow Festival Chorale members improvised police log items during warm-ups for their final appearance at the festival.

Lamott and his fellow a capella conspirators performed the piece as an encore, surprising — and delighting — nearly everyone in the house, including conductor Bruno Weil.

The incredible reaction — cheering and shouting from every corner of the Sunset Center auditorium — had people around town asking just what it is about a collection of brief police reports that engages the imaginations of so many and makes them proud to call Carmel home.

Is it because the log consists mostly of silly items that depict Carmel as a crime-free city where people live unencumbered by the fear that besets their urban-dwelling brethren?

For example, not long ago we reported that police officers had been called to a motel because of a fight that was apparently in progress. When they got there, officers found a man and his son arguing over who should kill a moth that had flown into their room.

Another favorite: a man called police, fearing for a friend's safety. It seems the friend had suddenly stopped transmitting e-mail. Officers went to the friend's house, and found that he was fine but his modem was broken.

Often we've been criticized by conspiracy-lovers who, reading items like these, see the log as a sanitized version of life in Carmel, with the real crime purposely omitted in an attempt to keep the tourists coming. Believers in that theory would describe the reaction to the Police Log Cantata as evidence that many people are fooled by the "artificial" version of Carmel life depicted in the log.

The criticism is completely unfounded, of course. The only time our editors and reporters pull a piece of "bad news" out of the police log is to give it greater prominence by making it into a story on its own — often on the front page.

It wasn't always so in The Pine Cone. Way back in 1916, the founding publisher of this newspaper wrote an editorial in which promised that "reports of crime and scandal will find no place in its pages" and asked the community to help the paper "maintain its [no scandal] ideals."

The paper's standards have long since been changed to reflect the interests of a new generation of fin de siècle Carmelites — people who want to know what's going on in town whether it's a scandal or not.

The Police Log is amusing. But we think its popularity springs from the fact that it is an unvarnished rendering of the everyday events — amusing and sad — of ordinary peoples' lives.

Those items are genuine and come from the people living next door to you, or down the street from you.

Our Police Log is like a soap opera, but it's real. That's why so many people find it irresistible reading — and even better when put to music.

Pick up the "business"

Dear Editor:

Once upon a time there was a lady who was out walking her dog in Carmel. As was the usual daily happening the doggie proceeded to "do her business" under a tree in a small area with wood chips. All of a sudden a man's voice boomed out, "I see you. I know who you are and where you live. You better pick up after that dog."

She didn't have a pooper scooper or a plastic baggie but she knew he was right. She told him so. She said, "You know, you're right," and she ran into a store, got a paper towel and picked up the "business."

The woman was me and my little dog, Magic, and the moral of the story is that I have never gone out again without a picker-upper. I'm grateful to that man up in his office who yelled at me and I don't want to yell at everyone but please, dog lovers everywhere (in Carmel) pick up the stuff. It looks really bad for the neighborhood.

Rita Firestone Seger, Carmel

Stuffiness dispelled

Dear Editor:

If one presumed a certain stuffiness pertained to the Carmel Bach Festival, in the "Best of the Fest," Bruce Lamott's encore rendering of a week's worth of the Police and Sheriff's Log to Anglican chant, as reported in your paper 14 August, surely put that notion to rest.

Small town police logs hardly seem the stuff of major entertainment, but the above brings to mind that the now defunct British humor magazine, "Punch," saw fit several years ago to print in its entirety under "Country Life" a one-week police log from Chester — that's Chester as in California, not England — the very same of bumper sticker fame: "Where in hell is Chester?"

It's end of summer and the concerts are many

Plugged In

By Stephen L. Vagnini

PROMOTER Barbara Murphy's summer concert schedule is in full swing this weekend with three concerts scheduled at two venues. Performing Friday, Aug. 28 at Carleton Hall, located in the Monterey Religious Science Church on Franklin Street, are two of the foremost Turkish musicians in the world. In conjunction with the Turkish American Association of California, Murphy presents an evening of Sufi music featuring Necati Celik, the primary oud artist of the State Classical Musical Ensemble in Istanbul; and Omar Faruk Tekbilek, known for his work on the ney (bamboo, end-blown flute). Music starts at 8. Tickets are $13 at the door or call 373-7379 for reservations.

Kenny Rankin

"Over the hill" from Monterey by way of Highway 68, The Jazz Store in Carmel expects two standing-room audiences this weekend for the return engagement of popular jazz/pop vocalist Kenny Rankin. Tickets may still be available, so call 624-6432 for reservations as soon as possible. Friday, Aug. 28, Rankin will perform a solo concert, and on Saturday, Aug. 29 he will perform backed by a quartet. His latest CD, "Here in My Heart," once again displays his incredible vocal range and adroit musicianship. Tickets are $25.

The Jazz Store also recently announced the acquisition of Black-Hawk Records, a tasteful jazz label, and their first release (a limited edition is now available for purchase at the Crossroads location.) A solo tribute to Bill Evans, pianist Jessica William's "Joyful Sorrow" was recorded live at the Jazz Store and is a classy harbinger of things to come from the new and improved Black Hawk Records ... another feather in the cap for the dynamic duo of Gil Wisdom and Alan Schultz.

THEATER REVIEW

Even grown-ups will respond to this 'Wizard of Oz'

By PATRICK WHITEHURST

SATURDAY, August 22, market Pacific Repertory Theatre's opening night for "The Wizard of Oz" at Carmel-by-the-Sea's bewitching Forest Theatre.

It was carnival time. The picnic baskets were opened, the wine and soft drinks, the bread and the cheese were laid out, and excitement filled the air. I have rarely seen the old theater in the forest as alive and as packed as it was that night.

Produced by Stephen Moorer and directed by Walt deFaria, "Oz" is based on the MGM movie, and the script is its adaptation by John Kane for The Royal Shakespeare Company.

Universal appeal

The original story, "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz," written in 1900 by L. Frank Baum, was first staged in 1902. Its initial success prompted the author to write 12 additional Oz stories, but none have captured the hearts of audiences as has the first. Its appeal, to both children and adults, has been universal. And the music and score have charmed us all down the years.

In this staging, an orchestra is conducted by musical director Michelle Galindo. And there is nothing that adds to the magic more than live music.

Including cast, crew and orchestra, there is a company of more than 100 performers that director deFaria skillfully guides around the stage, into the woods surrounding the audience, and down the Yellow Brick Road with Dorothy and her adorable dog Toto leading the procession of characters.

Every member of this huge cast performed their parts to perfection. Particularly enchanting were the children (in their splendid Munchkin costumes created by Gloria Goodwin), who play out their roles as if professional old-timers, and without the slightest trace of timidity.

J.T. Holmstrom portrays "the rollicking, cowardly Lion."

Melanie Mesiroff as Dorothy leads her trio of unlikely friends into the land of Oz, with John Daniel as the Scarecrow, Keith Wolhart as the Tinman and J.T. Holmstrom as the rollicking, cowardly Lion. Along the way they encounter the Wicked Witch, Gregory Gjurich, who makes a wonderfully terrifying old crone — even with the gender bending. Connie Erickson plays the beautiful Glinda, the Good Witch, aided and abetted by 60 Munchkins, Oziana, Winkies, Cyclone Dancers choreographed by Gloria Elber, Poppy People, Snow People, and other characters and great performers too numerous to mention here.

Eventually, through trial and tribulation, they meet, or rather hear, the Wizard of Oz of the awesome, towering voice, played by Ron Cohen.

Tornado especially good

Special effects, and the ingenious lighting design by Ed Hills, add significantly to the fairy tale quality of the story. Especially good was the act one tornado scene.

Along with the special effects, the 11 Flying Monkeys in the Wicked Witch's Army, glide through the set in a very special and unique manner that, in its own way, defies the law of gravity.

This is a show for all of us children. From behind me in the dark, I heard a small voice: "This is better than the movie!"

What better acclaim than that?

COLLECTED STORIES

Finalist for the 1997 Pulitzer Prize, "Collected Stories" focuses on a complicated six-year relationship between two women — one a successful short story writer, the other her protegee. It is written by Donald Margulies.

Conrad Selvig directs Neva Hahns and Jessamay Howell in this MPC Players production. It plays 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 5 p.m. Sundays through Sept. 27 at Cherry Hall, Guadalupe and Fourth, Carmel.

Tickets are $12 general, $10 for students and seniors. Reservations: 646-9478.

THE GHOST OF THE OZARKS

A classic melodrama that became the inspiration for a John Wayne movie, "Ghost of the Ozarks" continues its run at California's First Theatre.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Aug. 27-29 at the theater, located at Scott and Pacific streets in Monterey. The Troupers of the Gold Ghost will present their Olio (or after-show), as well. For reservations, call 375-4916 during office hours: 1 to 7 p.m. Wednesdays, 1 to 7:30 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays.

GYPSY

The musical classic that chronicles the rise of Gypsy Rose Lee continues in the Main Stage Theatre at Monterey Peninsula College. "Gypsy" features such standards as "Let Me Entertain You" and "Everything's Coming Up Roses."

Final performances are set at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 28-30. The college is at 980 Fremont St., Monterey. Tickets are $15 general, $11 for students and senior citizens and $7 for children age 12 and younger. For reservations, call the MPC box office, 646-4213, between 4 and 7 p.m. Wednesday through Sunday.

OF MICE AND MEN

By popular demand, John Steinbeck's novel comes to life in this Unicorn Theatre interpretation.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and 7 p.m. Sundays until Sept. 13 at the Hoffman Playhouse, 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in New Monterey.

Tickets are $15 general, $12 students and seniors, group discounts available. 649-0259.

PINOCCHIO

Family Fantasy Theatre stages a comical production for children of the classic "Pinocchio." Show times are 2 and 4 p.m. Saturdays and 3 p.m. Sundays through Sept. 12 at the Hoffman Playhouse, 320 Hoffman (at Lighthouse) in New Monterey.

All tickets are $5, and reservations are advised. Call 649-0259.

SHIMMER

Pacific Repertory Theatre founder Stephen Moorer plays multiple roles as a grown man who relives his experience as a teenaged inmate in a Midwestern reform school. John Rousseau directs.

The Central Coast premiere run of "Shimmer" continues at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 29 in the Circle Theatre of the Golden Bough, Casanova between 8th and 9th, Carmel. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 students, seniors, military and teachers. 622-0100.

TAPPING THE GLASS

The PRT Solo Series continues with "Tapping the Glass," a one-woman show written by and starring Jeanne Wooster. The show focuses on a woman's final college year in Philadelphia, and her life centered around Dirty Frank's Bar. It contains strong language and content.

Curtain is at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 28 in the Circle Theatre at the Golden Bough, Casanova between 8th and 9th, Carmel. Tickets are $15 for adults, $10 students, seniors, military and teachers. 622-0100.

THE WIZARD OF OZ

Brimming with special effects, including inline "flying" skating monkeys, the musical continues at the Outdoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel.

Directed by Walt deFaria, this Pacific Repertory Theatre production takes its cue from the famed MGM film.

"The Wizard of Oz" will be staged at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Sundays until Sept. 20.

Regular admission is $15 for adults, $10 for children and seniors. Student group rates are available. 622-0100.

Tape collection lets you bone up on local history

IN OUR ONGOING crusade to keep newcomers and old timers alike informed of books, tapes and videos pertaining to Carmel and the area, we would like to call to your attention the audio-visual collection of the Local History Department of Harrison Memorial Library's Park Branch.

These tapes can be viewed any time in the Local History Room on Sixth at Mission, which is open from 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Fridays. Among them: "Big Sur, The Way it Was," "Don't Pave Main Street," "Fort Ord, a Place in History," "Longtimers" Part I and II (artists of the area); and "Remembering Carmel," Part I, II and III by Warren Masten — and more.

Among videotaped lectures: "Carmel in the 1920s and 1930s" by Richard Criley; "The Life and Art of Nancy Johnston" by Anne Downs; "Carmel Early Journalism: W. K. Basset and the Carmel Cymbal" by John Bassett McCleary; "Themes in My Poems" by Robinson Jeffers presented by Cecil Wahle; "The Hazards of Growing Up in Carmel" by Pete Steffens — and still more.

If you're a stuck and rejected writer, you might want to drag yourself to Madeline Dimaggio and Tad Wojnicki's round table discussion, "Get Unstuck & Make Rejection Work for You," on Tuesday, Sept. 1. This positive approach to an otherwise dismal situation will offer tips on how to overcome writer's blocks and deal with rejection in a positive way.

Dimaggio, author of "How to Write for Television," has produced film and TV scripts in virtually every genre and is currently co-producing and writing Movies of the Week now in development.

Wojnicki, author of "Lie Under the Fig Tree," has taught "Write Like a Lover" creative workshops at local libraries and community colleges.

The free program is sponsored by Local 7 of the National Writers Union. The public is invited and may ask questions and/or discuss specific concerns relating to the business of writing. The discussion takes place at 7 p.m. at The Coffee Bar, Walden Books, 222 Del Monte Shopping Center, Monterey. For more information, call 649-6891, or go to this website: www.mbay.net/~nwu

MARSHA FRISBEE DE VOE, author of the little book, "The Martins and the Hattons — Carmel Valley, California," which we discussed in last week's column, informs us that the book can be purchased for $5.95 at the Cooper Store in Monterey at the head of Alvarado Street.

Carmel bridge players score big-time

TWO LOCALS, competing with some 8,000 contestants around the world, took first place in the recent 13th annual Worldwide Bridge Contest — the first American first place win in a decade.

Ray Boehne and James Coventry, who play regularly with the Carmel Bridge Club, won $400 each and had a 77.7% game, according to Jean Goudzward, director of the club, who said, "This has to be the thrill of a lifetime. All America is proud of this pair."

Boehne was quoted in the "The Bridge Bulletin," the official publication of the American Contract Bridge League as saying, "Like Jim says, we got nowhere to go but down."

Rare Finds on the Peninsula

Alexander of Florence Gallery

With a newly earned degree in international policy studies, it seems only natural that Alexander Magazzini would be — a Carmel art gallery owner? Art won out over diplomacy in the life of this son of Tuscany.

After receiving his degree at the Monterey Institute of International Studies in December, Magazzini returned to his native Italy. With his father, an art collector, and his cousin, an artist, he obtained the encouragement and support he needed to launch the Alexander of Florence Gallery.

The gallery is located on Mission between Fifth and Sixth in the heart of Carmel-by-the-Sea. What sets it apart from others in town is that Magazzini knows each of the artists personally. The majority hails from Tuscany, a region known for six centuries as a center of painting and sculpture.

The proprietor hopes that all who visit Alexander of Florence Gallery will be reminded of sunny Italy. His gallery is home to original, contemporary paintings and sculpture. It's open 10 to 6 every day; later on Fridays and Saturdays. Call 620-0732.

The Cottage Restaurant

When it's good honest food you're looking for, served graciously in generous portions, there is a Carmel eatery that delivers — breakfast, lunch or dinner. We're talking about The Cottage Restaurant on Lincoln between Ocean and Seventh in the heart of the village.

Co-owned by the husband and wife team of Steve and Nellie Cardinalli and Steve's mother Kathleen, The Cottage is renowned for the integrity of its cooking. Chefs Alejo Vasquez and Ron Plantz and the entire staff take no short-cuts to produce their famed artichoke soup, lasagna, eggs Benedict and other goodies.

The Cottage opens at 7:30 every morning. Expect first-rate coffee, and a huge selection of breakfast delights. Among them: Cottage French toast made with panettone (Italian fruit bread), excellent pancakes and waffles, and eggs Benedict and omelettes in all their glory. There's even a lox and bagel board for those so inclined. And breakfast is served straight through to 3 p.m.

Starting at 11, the lunch menu is ready for your enjoyment. By midday, there is often a line out the door. Folks gather for the daily specials (chicken stew in a sourdough basket on Monday), or maybe a sampler salad, gourmet hamburger or baked brie cheese board.

On Thursday through Saturdays only, The Cottage offers dinner starting at 5 p.m. Once again, the chefs outdo themselves with steaks cooked to order, seafood, ravioli du jour, salads or the noteworthy Cottage pizzas. Wine, beer and gourmet coffees round out the experience.

The Cottage Restaurant is a Carmel tradition. To learn more, call 625-6260.

Mu-shu Tomatoes on Spicy Slaw

Beat Giger, The Lodge at Pebble Beach

4 Mu-shu wrappers
8 tomatoes, peeled and chopped
1 Tbs. fresh ginger root, peeled and diced very small
2 Tbs. lemon grass, lower white section
1 tsp. garlic, chopped fine
1/2 cup scallion, white and green parts, chopped
salt to taste
1 Tbs. vegetable oil
4 Tbs. bean paste
4 sprigs cilantro

Sauté the chopped garlic and lemon grass in a hot sauté pan for 1-2 minutes until golden brown using 1 Tbs. oil. Add peeled, seeded and chopped tomatoes. Stir together and remove from heat. Add ginger and scallion. Mix and season to taste. Spread a thin layer of bean paste to a 2-by-2-inch area in the center of each Mu-shu wrapper. Divide the mixture among the 4 wrappers. Place onto the center of each Mu-shu wrapper and fold to create a 2-by-2-inch pillow.

Slaw

1/4 white cabbage finely sliced
1/2 cup rice wine vinegar
1 Tbs. black sesame seeds
1 tsp. dry chili flakes, deep-fried

Place the pillows on the slaw and garnish with sprigs of fresh cilantro.

The Mu-shu can be served warm (steamed) or cold on the chilled cabbage slaw.

cut into 1" cubes

In a small bowl, stir together honey, half the water and the yeast.

In a separate bowl, combine sugar, salt and remaining water. Set aside.

Place the tomato puree and the flour in a mixing bowl equipped with a dough hook, add the yeast mixture. Mix on low speed. Add the eggs, and mix until dough mass begins to form. Add the sugar and salt mixture and continue to mix for 5-8 minutes, or until the dough is smooth, Add the butter and continue mixing until it is completely incorporated. Scrape the sides of the bowl down with scraper and mix for 5 minutes, or until dough appears smooth and elastic. Wrap the dough in plastic and chill, allowing it to rest for at least one hour before use.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees F. Brush surface with egg white and bake 12-15 minutes until Brioche* is browned.

 Brioche dough can be refrigerated for 24 hours or frozen for up to one week.*

Heirloom Tomato Syrup

1/2 cup olive oil
1 small onion, chopped
2 stalks celery, chopped
3 cloves garlic, chopped
2 lbs. heirloom tomatoes, peeled, seeded, juice reserved
1 Tbs. fresh ground black pepper
1 Tbs. kosher salt
1/2 cup fresh basil, chopped
1 pint chicken stock
1 Tbs. aged balsamic vinegar

Heat olive oil in pan, add onions, celery and garlic. Cook over low heat for 3 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add tomatoes and remaining ingredients. Simmer over low heat for 2-3 hours, until thick. Cool and then process in food processor for 30 seconds.

Assemble the Brioche:

Cut a small hole in the top of the brioche. Hollow out a small area, and fill with syrup. Replace top of brioche. Serve immediately

Monterey Museum of Art a fine place to boogie down

People and Places

By Sissi Maleki

THIS WEEK I finally understood the true purpose of a gift store in a museum. It's not intended to increase the visitor's knowledge nor to significantly add to the bottom line. It's set up purely as a tool for bribery. Imagine the number of culture-hungry spouses, parents or friends whose only hope for a quick fix at a museum lies in the potential appeal the gift store holds for their mate, child or friend! And resorting to bribery is a small price to pay for a museum looking to maintain its traffic — though the price the art/history/whatnot-lover pays is not equally small. At the museum the other night, I gently pushed my sister in the direction of the gift store hoping to get some time to wander around. No, she's not a kid. But she's not into museums, either. Sure enough, an hour later she reappeared at my side all excited — and holding a large shopping bag. Oh well, just a simple price to pay . . . .

Lettie Bennett and Board of Trustees member Mary Hill have fun at the Monterey Museum of Art.

■ Soroptimists and Rotarians boogie at the Museum

This past Third Thursday of the Month (August 20th) event at the Monterey Museum of Art must have awakened every spirit that ever inhabited the ground beneath the museum. (Jo Mora, whose work is on display, must've had a jolt, too.) The Soroptimists International of Carmel Bay co-hosted the event with the Carmel Rotary Club, which featured its pride and joy, the Carmel Rotary Blues Band.

With the music filling the museum's halls and an impromptu — but spectacular — performance by Thelma Howard, guests just couldn't help getting their dancing feet going. And I mean going! One male guest — who shall remain nameless because I was too afraid for my safety to approach him and ask his name — must have worked out every muscle in the human anatomy. Then there were those like Soroptimist Judy Brooke-Green, hubby Mike and friend Jim Gregg who were content to stand on the side and enjoy the show.

It was so hard to imagine the band musicians in their real lives: guitarist Greg Kraft (real estate broker), vocalist Chris McKay (entrepreneur), keyboard player Barry Harrow (lawyer), bass player Russ Campbell (general contractor) and drummer Tom Olivola (securities dealer). By the way, y'all should know that this band's performances (and they play gigs all over) go to benefit youth music programs. They are also fund raising to build a professional recording studio in the Carmel Youth Center.

■ Cherry Center seeks support for survival

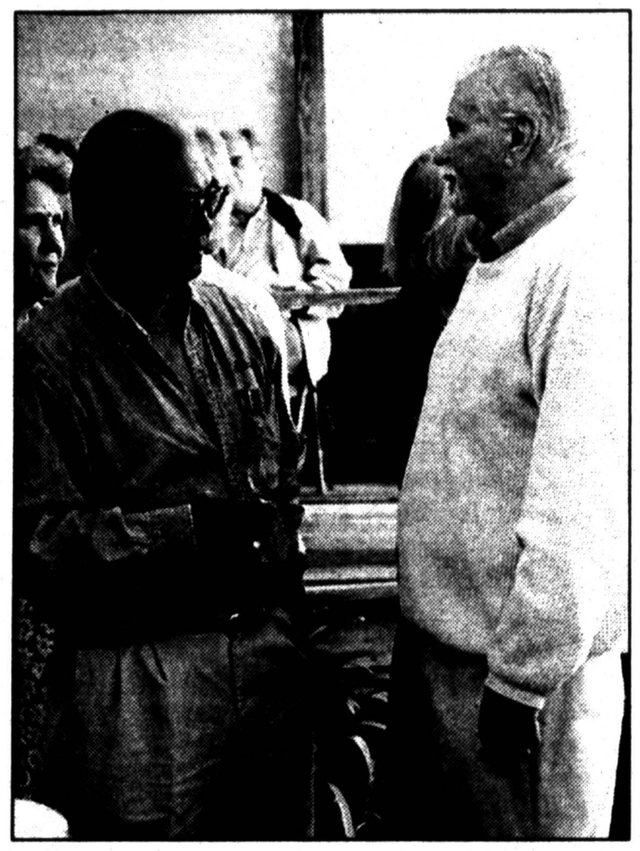
This heading may sound melodramatic, but if you had seen what I saw on August 23rd during a tour of the Carl Cherry Center for the Arts, you'd agree that this historic landmark deserves funding assistance pronto!

At a wine and cheese reception there, board president and novelist Bob Campbell showed a group of us (Ann Bell, Don Newmark and Harvey & Melanie Billig, to name a few) the disgraceful conditions (I'm not exaggerating) that performers are forced to endure when they entertain audiences in the various areas of the Cherry Center. The center's board has been fortunate enough to get well-known architect John Thodos to draw up some preliminary plans, but the "renaissance" of the Cherry Center will require at least $367,000 to make improvements. Bob and fellow board members Bonnie Brice and Florence Frette are well aware that temporary fixing up (i.e. "band aid" solutions) is just delaying the inevitable.

I was glad to see they had attracted the attention of the very newly founded Chalone Foundation, which had donated the reception's wine and had one of its board members, Honorio Della, in attendance. This group, associated with the Chalone Vineyards, is planning, among other things, to provide scholarships for food service students, donations of wine to non-profit benefit events, and generally help out the communities in which they maintain vineyards.

Carmel Rotary Blues Band musicians doing their thing.

Cherry Center board members Florence Frette and A.J. Houston with, far right, Mona Kelly. Wines were supplied by Chalone.



Honorio Della listening to Bob Campbell make the case for the Cherry Center.

■ Friendship Circle enjoys good food and sun

The Edith Alt Friendship Circle held its monthly potluck dinner on August 23rd at the wonderful home of Donna and Bob Johnston in Carmel Valley. With the sun still shining and the panoramic view almost too picture-postcard perfect, members from all over the peninsula came to enjoy each other's cooking and conversation.

Edie and Sam Karas took the opportunity to entertain a Japanese MIIS student, Tomohiko Matsushita. Barbara and Bob Eastman kept Marti Myszak busy chatting while as usual, Jackie Craghead, coordinator of the Circle and dressed in a stunning yellow and black outfit, ran around making sure everyone was content. Morley Brown was the life of the party. (Why am I not surprised?)

The Edith Alt Friendship Circle is a very unusual group. It was founded in 1985 by a woman who felt there was still an unacceptable level of racial segregation on the Monterey Peninsula. Jumping right in and doing something about it, she formed the circle. Now, monthly potluck dinners bring together all races to share good conversations, good food and good times. (For more info on the circle, call Jackie Craghead at 899-5526.)

Tonight at the Media Room in Pacific Grove, Murphy presents the return of Oregon folk artist Dave Carter appearing with multi-instrumentalist Tracy Grammer. A multi-award-winning songwriter, Carter has been called the "Carlos Castaneda of country music" for his deep and spiritual approach to songwriting. His recent CD release, "Snake-Handlin' Man," conjures visions of spirits wandering through the deserted highways of a lost America. Music starts at 8 p.m. Admission is $10.

Saturday, Aug. 29 at the Media Room marks the return of pianist/composer Stefan Dickerson. Performing a solo concert at 8, Dickerson will play selections from his Grammy-nominated CD, "Romanza — Themes of Love," as well as new selections from his latest album, "Afterglow." Both albums have received national and international airplay and can be heard on local smooth jazz radio station KXDC (101.7 FM). Dickerson has toured the world and has recorded in the studio with Barbara Streisand, Anita Baker, George Benson and many others. Tickets are $25 at the door. Seating is limited and reservations are recommended. Call 373-7370.

Local Club Scene

The club scene on Cannery Row has been heating up this summer with blues, reggae and rock 'n' roll on the weekends promoted by Doc's Nightclub, The Blue Fin Cafe & Billiards, Sly McFly's Refueling Station and down the tracks a bit at Whitey's Place. Viva's, the Long Bar and the Crown and Anchor have been keeping live music alive in downtown Monterey and now word comes from promoter Dan Miller that he will be booking shows at McGarrett's on Alvarado Street on Thursday nights. This could be the best news in a long time for music lovers.

Scheduled to perform on September 7 is international reggae star Pato Banton and on September 17 the Fabulous Thunderbirds will appear (they stole the show at this year's Monterey Bay Blues Festival). Keep posted for more details.

Staff Players plan auditions

THE STAFF Players Repertory Company will conduct auditions for Somerset Maugham's "The Circle" at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. All ages of men and women are needed for this production.

Auditions will take place 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 1 and 2. To learn more, call 624-1531.

Cannery Row

What's happening this month in and around the Monterey Peninsula's historic waterfront

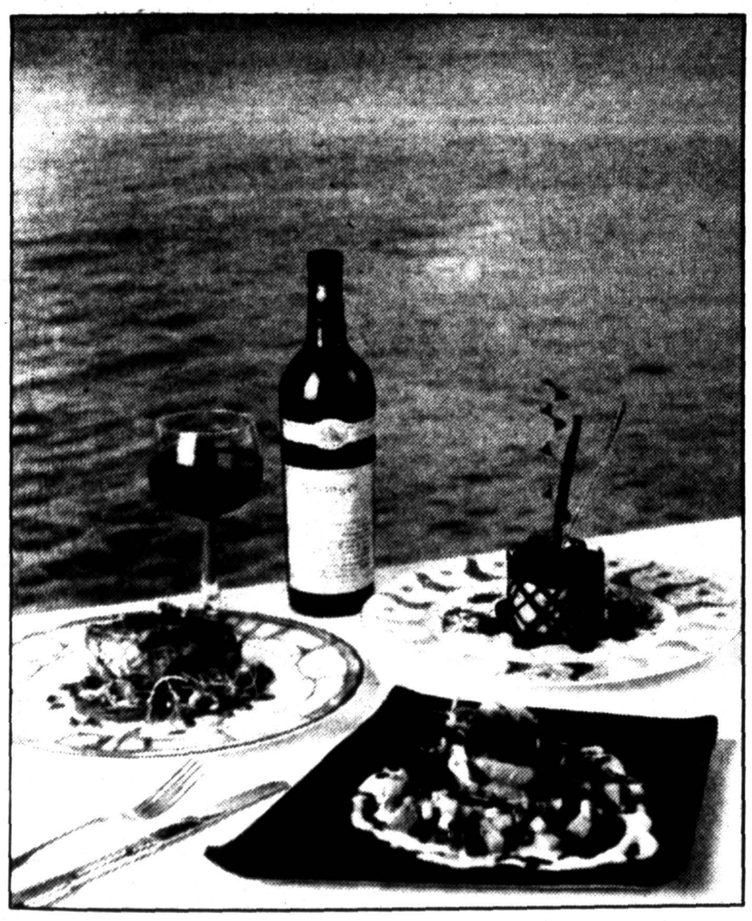
Restaurant Row at the Monterey Plaza Hotel

Duck Club Restaurant

Here on the Monterey Peninsula, we love to dine out....but do you know who's preparing your food? Come to the Monterey Plaza Hotel and find out! Executive Chef James Waller hosts a complimentary cooking class in the Main Lobby every Saturday afternoon, and he delights in meeting guests and sharing his vast knowledge of food preparation. A smartly-dressed waitstaff offers hors d'oeuvres and mineral water as you sit back and watch the experts prepare such specialties as Steinbeck's Duck and Honey-Roasted Prawns. And of course, every great meal should be completed with a fantastic dessert—such as Cappuccino Crème Brûlée! Chefs James Waller, David Curcio, and Sharon Campbell show their talents through an entire three-course meal, and all chefs are friendly and open to questions. You will even get a chance to sample each of the three courses—a delectable treat which may inspire you to make your way to the restaurant for dinner!

Reservations for the Duck Club weekly cooking demonstration are suggested, but walk-ins are always welcome as space permits. Class size is limited to 25 guests. Please call 646-1706 for more information. Call ahead for updates on weekend cooking demonstration times, as this varies depending on special events being held in the hotel.

The Duck Club is located in the Monterey Plaza Hotel, 400 Cannery Row.



Steinbeck's Duck from the Duck Club

Serves two
1 c. soy sauce
1 T. ginger, minced
1 t. jalapeño peppers, minced
2 garlic cloves, minced
1/2 orange, sliced
1/2 lemon, sliced
10 coriander seeds
1 t. brown sugar
1 T. honey
1 whole maple leaf duck

1. Trim excess fat from duck and remove wings. Rinse under cold water and towel dry.
2. Allow duck to air dry uncovered in refrigerator for 12-24 hours.
3. Combine all marinade ingredients in saucepot and bring to a boil. Turn off and allow to cool.
4. Coat entire duck with marinade; wait 15 minutes and coat again. Repeat in 15 minutes.
5. Roast duck on a rack in oven pan at 350° for one hour. Cool slightly, debone and enjoy!

Steinbeck's Duck is excellent served with a fruit accent, such as blood orange sauce.

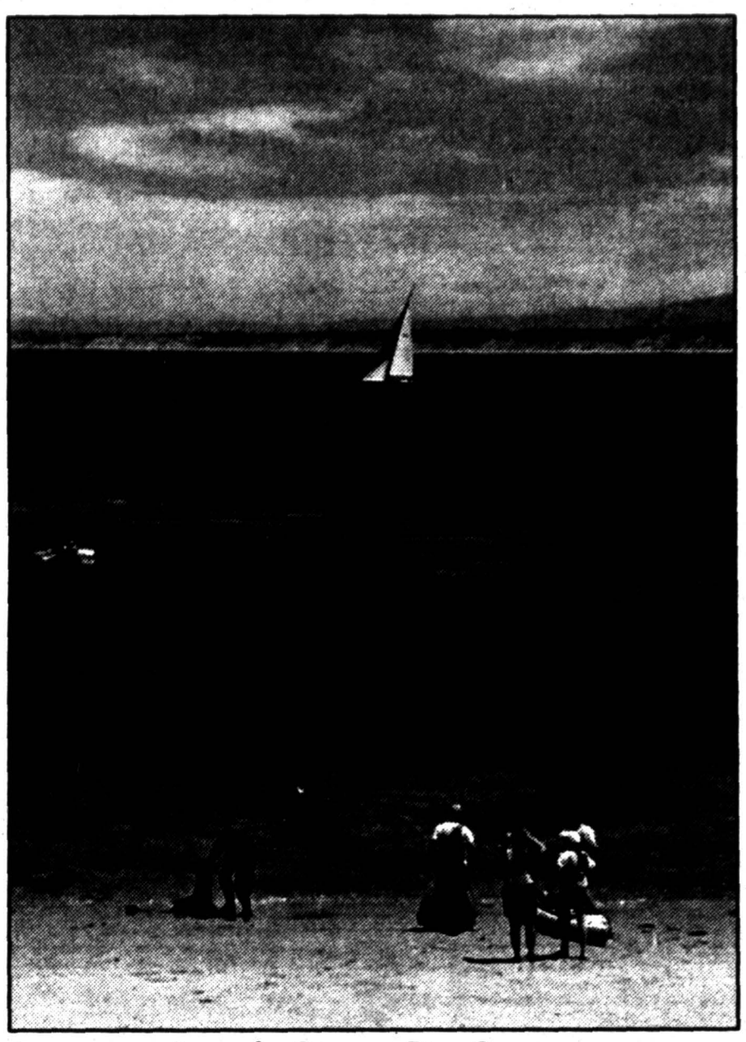
Cool Coastal Summer on the Row



Summer sets in on the Cannery Row Coast

Although many Monterey Peninsula residents take our cool summer weather for granted along the Central Coast, many of our visitors are here for just that reason. With temperatures going through the roof in many inland parts of the state, the cool misty mornings and crisp sparkling evenings along Cannery Row are just what many of the visitors in Monterey are here for.

John Steinbeck described Cannery Row as "a tone, a habit, a quality of light..." in his 1945 classic, "Cannery Row." He may have had just those same mists and fogs in mind as he penned his description of "the hour of the pearl" on Cannery Row, the time between daylight and darkness.

This also happens to be one of the most magical times on Cannery Row--either early morning or fading twilights--during the part of the year Mark Twain described in the 1860s when he wrote, "one of the coldest winters I ever spent was a summer in San Francisco." He was, of course referring to the chilly mists and fog that often shroud the Central Coast, where elsewhere in much of the state summer means oppressive heat.

This is not all news to local residents but it does serve to remind us that, unlike one may expect, Cannery Row is most receptive to its locals (as well as savvy visitors) in the mornings when Cannery Row stretches itself like an awakening cat, and crisp evenings when Cannery Row slows to the beat of the bell buoy as a sparkling necklace of lights rim the arch of Monterey Bay.

How long has it been since you took a walk on The Row, morning or night? Coffee shops and cafes open for breakfast; shops with unique and amazing things you never dreamed of; Monterey's "Restaurant Row" ready to serve your every taste interest; honest, hardworking stores and businesses that have lots to offer to more than only our visitors. And for a real change of pace, how about an evening stroll of the Row before dessert or day-ending cocktail.

Why do you suppose it is that so many visitors seek out and find Cannery Row when on the Monterey Peninsula? The answer may start out as a decision to kayak the Row yourself, with friends or family that have admired but not participated in the obvious fun that so many of our "tourists" resoundly enjoy. Take a Cannery Row break from your routine, whatever it is. It promises to be a real treat that may change your mind about letting our visitors have all the fun on Cannery Row. After all, as Peninsula residents, the "hour of the pearl" really belongs to you.

Rumi's poems, stories presented September 3 by Ashley Ramsden

By MARGOT PETIT NICHOLS

OPENING THE Tor House Foundation's 1998-1999 reading series, storyteller Ashley Ramsden will present, "This Being Human: Poems and Stories by Rumi and Other Sages" at 8 p.m., Thursday, September 3 at the Scout House, Carmel.

Musical accompaniment will be by Marc Arles, music director for the Santa Cruz Waldorf School.

Ramsden is director of the School of Storytelling at Emerson College, near London, England, and is founder of the annual International Storytelling Symposium and co-creator of The Whole Story, a consultancy group that is bringing storytelling to the business world.

Ramsden has performed extensively in Australia, Europe and the United States, and has twice been the recipient of a grant from the Cultural Council for Monterey County. He developed a special series of storytelling programs for the Monterey Library.

Ashley Ramsden

Together with storyteller Duncan Mackintosh and flautist Paul Cheneour, Ramsden has released a CD of his work entitled, "This Being Human." He will be telling some of the stories and poems from the CD at the evening performance.

Ramsden's performance is made possible by a grant from the Cultural Council for Monterey County. Admission is $10. The Scout House is located on Mission Street at 8th. For information, call 624-5725.

Can points save you money on your home loan?

By FRANK STAYDUHAR

AFTER THEY have found the home of their dreams, what is the first thing Mr. and Mrs. Homebuyer will want to know?

If they are like 90% of homebuyers who need a loan (especially in the expensive neighborhoods in and around Carmel and Pebble Beach), they will want to know what interest rate they will have to pay — obviously, a very important question.

When Mr. & Mrs. Homebuyer ask their lender what interest rate they'll have to pay, the lender usually can give them only an approximation. This is because interest rates fluctuate almost daily.

An interest rate can be quoted today but by the time the lending institution completes their examination of the documents Mr. & Mrs. Homebuyer have to submit and an appraisal is completed (often two weeks or more) the prevailing rates can change.

Is a minor fluctuation in rates important? Yes it is. In a $250,000 loan, the difference between a 7% and a 7-1/2% loan can be $10,000 in payments in the first 10 years!

But there is more. There can also be over $2,000 difference in the amount of principal paid off in that first 10 years. The 7% loan — even with lower payments — can pay off over $2,000 more than the 7-1/2% rate.

How do points fit into all this? Each point, as every homebuyer knows, is equal to 1% of the value of the loan. For example, in the $250,000 loan of Mr. & Mrs. Homebuyer one point is equal to $2,500.

Are the points worth it?

Points are, in effect, prepaid interest on the loan. Points may reflect the lender's profit, but not necessarily. A lender that charges points can charge a lower interest rate over the life of a loan. Similarly, a no points loan will often have a higher interest rate.

The good news is that the amount of points paid often gets a borrower more than an equivalent value in interest payments. If Mr. & Mrs. Homebuyer pay $2,500 in points — a form of prepaid interest — they will receive more than $2,500 worth of interest payment reduction.

Of course, this is dependent on the length of time they keep the loan and is the result of a financial principle known as the Time Value of Money, (which is too complicated to discuss here).

The question, of course, is whether to pay more points and get a lower interest rate or pay fewer (or no) points and pay a slightly higher rate. A general rule of thumb is that, depending on the term of the loan, one point can have the value of 1/8% to 1/4% of interest rate.

Truth in lending

If the Homebuyers paid four points (4 x $2,500 = $10,000) for their $250,000 loan to reduce their interest rate from 7-1/2% to 7%, it would take about ten years for the benefit of a 1/2% lower interest rate to catch up to the $10,000 cost in points. After that, in absolute dollars, they would be money ahead.

When the Homebuyers checked The Pine Cone for various lenders' published interest rates, they noted that after every interest rate quote there appeared another number labeled APR.

APR is an acronym for annual per cent rate. It was introduced when Congress passed legislation called the Truth in Lending Act.

Before the passage of the Truth in Lending Act, lenders sometimes quoted a low interest rate, then added a myriad of nettlesome charges to the loan to make up for the low rate.

It was confusing and the borrower had a difficult time comparing one loan with another.

APR is calculated according to a government formula which mandates that lenders include their loan charges to arrive at a standardized overall interest rate. The individual charges continue to appear on the loan documents but the consumer can be sure that they have been factored into the APR, providing a standardized way of comparing rates between lenders.

The figures quoted in this article are based on a standard, 30-year fixed rate loan. Adjustable rate mortgages will be covered another time.

Mayor suggests limit on art galleries

by KIRSTIE WILDE

HOW MANY art galleries would you guess exist in the village of Carmel-by-the-Sea? Forty. . . sixty. . . eighty?

The answer is 88, according to Mayor Ken White, an increase of 22 percent since the late 1980s. White is wondering out loud these days if that may be too many.

"I've been getting a lot of comments from residents and some business people who worry that more and more small shops are being taken over by art galleries," White told The Pine Cone. "I've decided to ask the council if they want to talk about limiting them."

The idea will likely come before the city council at its October 6 meeting, White said. "We don't want staff or the planning commission to spend weeks researching the feasibility of a limit on art galleries if the council isn't interested."

Piccadilly Park reopens

Carol Stratton (left), a founding member of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club and president Shirley Meneice helped Mayor Ken White cut the ribbon at the newly renovated Piccadilly Park on August 25. The garden club raised over $100,000 to refurbish the little downtown oasis, which features interlocking brick pathways that lead through native and drought-tolerant landscaping.

COMMITTEE FOR ART IN PUBLIC PLACES (CAPP)
NOTICE OF 2 UNSCHEDULED VACANCIES

The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea is soliciting applications from Carmel-by-the-Sea residents to fill two unexpired terms on the Committee for Art in Public Places (CAPP). One term will expire in July 1999 and the other in July 2001.

CAPP is composed of seven members, who serve four-year terms. Membership consist of artists, art educators, and art scholars. Members are appointed by the Community and Cultural Commission and ratified by the City Council. A brief description of the duties is listed below: (A more thorough description of the purpose and responsibilities of the Committee may be obtained from the Director of the Sunset Center).

1. To advise the Community and Cultural Commission and report periodically on matters pertaining to the quality, quantity, scope, location, and style of art in public places in the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea.

2. To advise the Community and Cultural Commission regarding the amounts to be expended on specific proposals for art in public places.

3. To explore on a continuing basis the availability of funds for the Art in Public Places Program from private, corporate and governmental sources.

4. To review plans for the installation of art in public places.

5. To review and maintain the inventory of art in public places and to advise the Community and Cultural Commission on matters pertaining to the maintenance, placement, alteration, sale, transfer, ownership, and acceptance or refusal of donations, and on other matters pertaining to art in public places.

6. To ensure that the cataloging of the City's art collection is current, and to report to the Community and Cultural Commissions, as requested, on its status.

Applications may be obtained at the Sunset Center, located on the east side of San Carlos Street between 8th and 10th Avenues, weekdays between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF RALPH SANDERS STOTSKY aka RALPH S. STOTSKY, RALPH STOTKSY, R.S. STOTSKY, and R. STOTSKY
Case No. MP14103

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of RALPH SANDERS STOTSKY aka RALPH S. STOTSKY, RALPH STOTKSY, R.S. STOTSKY, and R STOTSKY

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by BALDO M. KRISTOVICH in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that BALDO M. KRISTOVICH be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on September 18, 1998 at 9:30 AM in Dept. No. B located at 1200 AGUAJITO RD MONTEREY CA 93940.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

Attorney for petitioner:

POLICE LOG

described as a white male adult, 48 to 50 years of age, 5'3", 145 pounds, short brown hair, bright green eyes. Tanned complexion with a semi-Western accent.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 21

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Fraudulent use of credit card reported at market on Mission.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Business on Ocean reported a strange individual asking questions about jewelry.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of three transients setting up camp in Forest Hill Park. Three subjects observed barbecuing, not camping, which is not a crime.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Lost person became separated from her group at restaurant on Junipero. Reunited at Lincoln and Ocean.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of a man walking North on Junipero from 4th while bleeding from the face. The injured person was located just North of 4th in his van. Paramedics arrived and transported him to CHOMP for treatment of a cut over the left eye. He said he was walking in front of the police station and fell because he is an epileptic and got very dizzy. He was treated and released.

Pebble Beach: Eight newspaper racks were recovered at the turnout on Holman Highway, between Scenic Drive bridge and the Haul Road gate, four belonging to the Monterey Herald, three belonging to the San Francisco Chronicle and one belonging to the San Jose Mercury News.

Carmel area: Dorris Drive resident came into the office to turn in a B&W 12-Gauge shotgun, left in one of her apartments in October, 1996, by one of her tenants, who was taken to the VA hospital and is now probably deceased.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 22

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of an alarm at house on 10th near Mission. Upon officer's arrival the house was found to be secure. Dogs were observed running inside the house, possibly setting off the alarm. Evening watch had responded to house for the same reason. Alarm company notified of the situation.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of four motorcycles unattended with their motors running. Motorcycles were gone upon officer's arrival.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: CHP requested brooms to assist with clean-up of 3-inch screws that were spilled on Highway 1 near Carpenter. Officer responded and assisted.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Report of an open manhole cover on San Carlos. Unable to locate.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Woman on 8th couldn't get her Buick out of a parking space because it was blocked in by two other cars. Officer managed to get the car out.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Elderly female reported to have walked away from a residential facility. Unable to locate.

Carmel area: Old Ranch Road resident reported that he had left his fanny pack in the dining room at the Carmel Valley Ranch dining room the night before. When he returned to retrieve it the following day, it was not there, and had not been turned into resort management.

Carmel area: Selfridge Road resident reported that her daughter left her residence on August 14, to go to the store and never returned.

Pebble Beach: Individual reported that while she was walking her dog on 17 Mile Drive near Bird Rock, a car pulled in front of her, then "menacingly" pulled his car adjacent to her parked car.

Pebble Beach: 17 Mile Drive resident reported that his driveway mirror surface was shattered by an unknown means.

Carmel area: Individual at Carmel Rancho Shopping Center reported that three male juveniles were involved in a fight with an individual. At this time one other male juvenile retrieved a baseball bat from his truck and advanced towards the fight. All suspects were cited and released.

Carmel Valley: Tierra Grande resident reported hearing a female person yelling for help in the area. An area check was made, but nothing was found.

Carmel area: Individual found an umbrella in front of a Serra Avenue building. He turned it into the Carmel PD, who in turn gave it to us. Umbrella entered into evidence.

Watching for vandals?

Dear Editor:

Sunday while shopping in a local mall near Carmel I noticed a security policeman standing near the parking lot. There was a young lad with a skateboard watching him. I stopped to talk to the officer and was informed that he was guarding the parking lot against vandals. It seems that several boys, who were caught in the act, had slashed tires on parked cars and to prevent further acts of vandalism the security cop was hired.

Something about this seems to offer a solution. Most kids who skateboard are dedicated to their sport. I could be wrong but I'll bet the vandals who slashed the tires were not skateboarding. Now, to develop some maturity and responsibility, inform the kids who like to skateboard in the vacant parking lot that they are responsible for anything that happens while they are there. The kids in the village where I live have no place to skateboard and they do it in Del Fino Blvd. I have never heard anyone complain about vandalism in the area. Maybe there is a connection.

Don Soule, Carmel

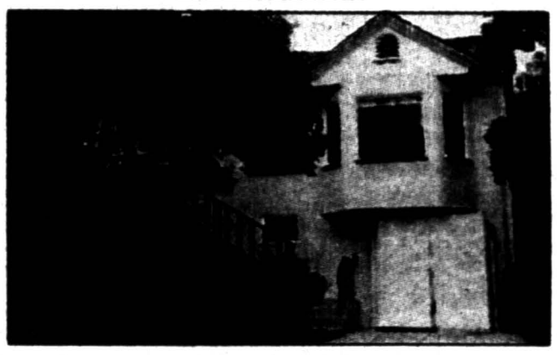
PRIVATE RETREAT! The ultimate in privacy, this beautiful contemporary home offers a 2-bedroom, 2-bath floor plan on two levels. Enjoy the gourmet kitchen, dining room, 2 fireplaces, Jacuzzi tub and large deck overlooking the gracious gardens with the desirable south-of-Ocean-Avenue location, this home provides a tranquil retreat for those looking to reside in Carmel-by-the-Sea. $745,000.

JUST LISTED! There is something very special about the Hatton Road area; it's a sought-after location for many reasons, such as...prime location, stately homes, quiet and peaceful huge lots by Carmel standards, and very convenient! This well-built, 3-bedroom, 2-1/2-bath home is 29 years old and has been beautifully maintained. Some may wish to remodel and some will love it just the way it is. You can't improve on the location, level land, and spectacular oaks & gardens. $975,000.

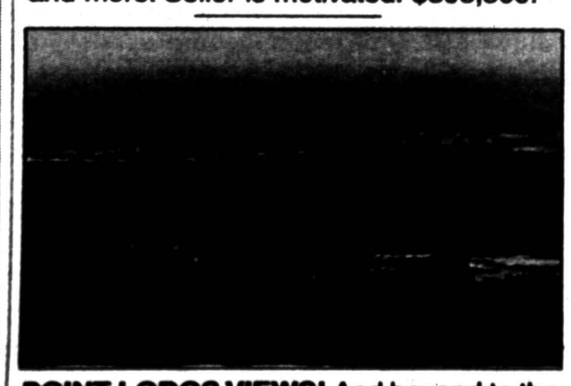
NEW ON THE MARKET! Within the privacy of a gated community just minutes to Carmel you'll find this wonderfully spacious home. Features include 18-foot high ceilings, upgraded kitchen, 2 bedrooms & 2 baths, and over 500 sq. ft. of decks. Only 8 years old yet feels new. Recently painted exterior and impeccably maintained interior. $549,000.

CARMEL VILLAGE COTTAGE! More than a typical Carmel cottage, with 3 bedrooms, 3 baths and completely remodeled. The guest room has a fireplace, small deck, ocean view and separate entrance. This two-story property features a formal entry, lots of storage, hardwood floors, deck, barbecue area, and 2-car garage. Also available as a separate property is a bed & breakfast. $829,000.



CASA GUADALUPE! Charming and sunny older home set on the high side of the street with expansive forest and peek-of-the-ocean vistas. Delightful stone fireplace, beautiful hardwood floors, cozy kitchen nook, den and a spacious formal dining room. Two bedrooms & 3 baths plus a separate bedroom & bath with private outside entry. $589,000.

BACK ON MARKET! With a preferred location, big rooms and hardwood floors, this cottage is ready to be transformed. Amenities include a huge studio/exercise room, sunny brick patio, office, fireplace and more. Seller is motivated! $398,500.



POINT LOBOS VIEWS! And beyond to the Pacific and the horizon from this incredibly sited home. To accompany this panorama, you have 5 bedrooms, 4 baths, a family room, den, view decks and patios, and two-car garage — all on a double lot. Many of the rooms have separate exterior entrances. A hard-to-find combination of large living space (about 3300 sq. ft.) spacious lot and incredible views. $699,000.

NEW CARMEL CLASSIC!... in an estate area behind The Lodge on a 1.20 acre site. Privately gated with entry level master suite, wonderful kitchen, family room and decks. The formal dining room and 3 additional bedrooms, plus a full guest quarter with bath, deck and private entry make this 5200 sq. ft. home a tremendous value, as well as the home of your dreams. $939,000.
